Rylee is a litigation associate at Branch MacMaster LLP.

After joining the firm in 2019 as an articling student she took her oath in June 2020.

Rylee practices primarily in insurance defence, medical malpractice and health law. Rylee has represented clients before the Provincial and Supreme Courts of British Columbia.

Rylee went to UBC where she obtained her BA (2015) and went to law school at Dalhousie University (JD-2019). During law school, Rylee participated in the part time clerkship program in the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, which gave her insight as to how judges reach their decisions.

In her free time, Rylee enjoys sea kayaking, hiking, skiing, and cooking for her friends and family.
